64. GAFFNEY, GERTRUDE. Towards the Dawn. Dublin: Phoenix, n.d. (1919?) Very Scarce.
Novel set first in the North and continuing in Dublin from 1908 till just after the Easter Rising. Not in BROWN. The author was a columnist for the Irish Independent, a special correspondent to the Irish troops in the Spanish Civil War, . She was also sent to cover Nazi Germany on the eve of war and a Papal coronation. Her mark in history however seems to be the barrage of journalism she aimed at the 1937 Constitution. Her virulent attacks on deValera and the clauses in the new constitution which meant women were no longer citizens entitled to equal rights did much to stir feminine resistance . One wonders if they are also the reason she has all but disappeared from Irish history. E45.00
